IGLU Soft Play

Product line: IGLU soft blocks

The IGLU story started in 2015 at the Baltics' largest polyethylene foam production company - PEPI RER. As the creative team was dreaming up new ways to use the material and testing the white-coloured foam, it came up with the first soft play block prototypes. They brought to mind the ancient snow blocks that Inuits used to build igloos in the north of Canada. To make the igloos warmer, the Inuits would cover the inner walls in animal hides.

In a nod to the old tradition, IGLU Soft Play combines the white foam blocks with faux leather to create a safe toy concept to encourage creativity and the joy of movement in children. The sets of different colours and sizes, ball pits and play shapes are suitable for children from five months of age to pre-school.

IGLU products develop a child's motor skills, encourage crawling, the imagination and movement, which are all important factors in a child's physical and mental development.

IRBE

Product line: fish products

IRBE uses only specially selected skinless herring fillets. Its produce is made entirely by hand. Based in Roja port, the production facility is close to fishing grounds, so unloading, sorting, icing and distributing the catch takes less time.

Most of the produce is made of fish caught by the company itself. As its fishing boats are quite small, the amount of fish trawled in one go isn't too big. That allows for all fish to be packed in isothermal storage and transportation containers and iced.

Fish from the Gulf of Riga are the most delicious as its waters are less salty due to the number of large rivers flowing into it. Here, fish are quicker to reach spawning age, they grow faster, are fatter, have a milder and better flavour.

Every product has its own special recipe. IRBE sources its treasured spice mixes from reputable companies. They give the produce its distinctive flavour and character.

Sap is tasty when it's fresh, but in order to maintain its refreshing and valuable qualities, during many years family has developed new recipes. The whole process of making the sparkling sap starts early in spring as soon as the ground thaws and sap starts to circulate through birches. an&angel

crystal and glass design

an&angel

Product line: dishware

The Deco collection consists of geometrical shapes in elegant colours enhanced with mirror effects. an&angel makes the mouth-blown dishes by fusing together different layers of glass which are covered in stainless steel to achieve the mirror effect. The new vases are a long-awaited addition to the brand's offering and are inspired by chess pieces. Bowls in the Moon collection are elegant, round and radiant as a nod to Earth's natural satellite. Their perfectly round shape reflects the force and vibrance of the moon, lending the bowls a great sense of luxury.

Every dish in the Black&white collection is handmade from four layers of glass fused into one. The In-between and Titan collections feature a combination of glass and metal. They mark an&angel's first foray into applying the innovative metal overlays to glass. The classic black or white exterior of the dishes have become a recognisable feature of the brand.

Cepļi

Product line: black ceramic and stone dishware

Handmade Latvian clay dishes spun on a potter's wheel. The artist scorches the dishes in a wood-fired kiln applying the smoke-fire technique. This is a traditional approach that has been recorded in the territory of Latvia since before the 13th century and the advent of glazed pottery.

After around twelve hours and hitting a temperature of 1050 degrees, the kiln is shut to create a smoky environment and the dishes absorb carbon. As a result of this alchemical process, the dishes acquire their dark tone which can vary from greenish grey to silvery black. This isn't always down to the artist's skill. Other factors such as the moon, wind and fellow natural forces can come into play. Once the dishes have been burnt, they're varnished with beeswax, which makes the porous surface easier to look after.

The artist also uses the kiln to produce collections of stoneware. The kiln reaches temperatures of 1250 degrees. As a result, the dishes are very durable and dishwasher friendly.

Glass Point

Product line: glassware

Glassware by designer Anna Varnase. The Basic collection consists of simple and elegant pieces made from recycled glass. Since the dishes are made from old windowpanes, they differ in colour, texture and even thickness. The recycled glass is sourced from forests, warehouses, old windows and design items and may be covered in a layer of grass, dust and dirt. At the studio, the team washes, cleans, slices, processes, heats at 740 degrees and shapes the glass to transform it into dishes.

The Coloursplash collection features elegant glassware made with a special technique that lends it a unique look and feel. These exclusive glass plates and bowls will add a modern and sophisticated touch to the dining table and the home. The collection is inspired by the natural movement and shape of glass itself, which is why no one piece is the same. Each piece captures the flow of colour and air within the glass, making it special yet visually delicate.
